

Arrange Golf Tournament for Atlantic City Caddies

Hotel Men Complain at Dearth of Entertainment for Winter Guests at Seaside Resort.

Special Dispatch to This New York Herald.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 9. THE Country Club of Atlantic City has arranged a golf tournament exclusively for the caddies of the three golf clubs of the county, and the event will be conducted on Christmas Day at the club's course at Northfield. There is considerable talent among the youngsters who tote the clubs, and they promise to give an excellent account of themselves.

The Lakewood Country Club, of which Mr. Joel Hillman, proprietor of the Breakers Hotel here, is president, will conduct a tournament December 20.

Gov.-elect George E. Silver of New Jersey, State Senators, members of the judiciary and others of prominence will address the convention of the Real Estate League of New Jersey, which opens at the Ambassador Thursday and will continue for three days.

Several prominent hotel men have contributed to a response on what the resort should do to entertain its winter guests. Not enough amusement places are open in winter, the hotel men complain.

Mr. Gustave Tott, manager of the Ritz-Carlton, suggests that those theaters and piers that close in the late autumn and remain closed most of the winter should be kept open. Failure to adopt this policy will leave an unfavorable impression on the visitor, he adds. Mr. Tott advocates a symphony orchestra as a resort institution.

Mr. Walter Buzby, proprietor of the Dennis, declares the pier auditoriums should be open and attractions, such as concerts and recitals should be conducted in them. Mr. Jacob Weikel, proprietor of the Sherburne, suggested that there should be a permanent orchestra or band and the resort should invite singers like Schumann-Heink and John McCormack. Mr. Harry Lutz, manager of the Alamac, advocates the building of a stadium for classic athletic events and winter sports.

Among the recent arrivals at the hotels are:

salutation of Savoy and Brennan, travelers start of the "Greenwich Village Follies," who are holding midnight vaudeville soirees at the Monte Carlo in West Fifty-first, is winning large response. Burlesquers of the fads of the day are heading a company of entertainers.

The Moulin Rouge has during its six years of continuous operation never failed to "play to capacity" at the dinner hour, while its after-theater business has also been invariably good.

Durand's, in West Forty-third street, modeled after the Parisian dining place, is under the direction of A. E. Beaton, formerly of the Ritz-Carlton. A special Sunday dinner will be featured.

Following the unusual crowds which visited the Blue Bird Thanksgiving week, everything points to a record breaking patronage during the coming holiday season. This dancing hall at Fifty-third street and Broadway boasts the only unobstructed dance floor in New York, two orchestras and only one admission charge for an entire evening of dancing.

A feature of the week at Roseland, at Fifty-first street and Broadway, will be the "cat in the bag" to-morrow night. A cat, with aristocratic ancestry but with the playfulness of a plebeian kitten, will be placed in a bag. Later in the evening it will be released on the dance floor, with a numbered tag on its neck. The holder of the corresponding door check number will get the cat.

PARIS BOOK SELLERS PROSPER SINCE WAR

Women Especially Read More Now Than Years Ago.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD. Copyright, 1922, by THE NEW YORK HERALD. New York Herald Bureau, Paris, Dec. 8.

An unexpected result of the war, according to bookstall proprietors, has been to boost their trade considerably, for it is evident that the French people read more to-day than ever before. Whereas, "years ago famous authors could register not much more than 80,000 circulation, one book of modern writers in many cases attains double that figure."

Women, it is thought, are the greater readers, because they took up the habit during the war when they were separated from their husbands, men relatives and friends. They also read more, probably on account of the high post-war cost of diversions, leaving no other evening occupation but reading.

Editors and librarians are unable to judge the kind of books in preference, but every class being rapidly sold out, from paper covered ones at three and a half francs to richly bound masterpieces. So prosperous has the book trade become that publishers hope soon to reduce the price of popular novels from seven francs to five.
